Task #2 (0.29 pts.) - Game Setting

Progress: 100%

Details:

- Thoroughly describe the setting

Your Response:

Game Setting is a Heroes Party, The further they go into dungeons the more rewards you can earn however, if you lose all your health you are out of the game. The game is based off of exploding kittens but with more intricate design. Basically the explosion doesn't mean instant death. There is a health system so you can take a few hits before you are out. There are classes in the game. You can shield, or pass it to someone else, or heal the damage you took over time depending on what you pick. As you get further in to the dungeons, it becomes more and more likely that you will take damage but the rewards also increase. You have to choose between advancing more with your team or deciding to make more selfish decisions if you can guarantee you can clear it by yourself as eliminating players makes it more likely for you to take damage.

Task #3 (0.29 pts.) - Game Characters

Progress: 100%

Details:

- Thoroughly describe the characters

Your Response:

The characters in this game are knights, mages, and thieves all in a single dungeon raiding party. There is a health system involved in the game and resources for each. the goal of the game is to make the most amount of money at the end.

Knights have the most health in the game but no other resources than the money they make, this makes it so that they have to use their money in order to repair their gear and last longer in the game.

Mages have spells and a mana resource that builds up over time. They are able to deflect damage and look into the future(look at cards in the deck and change them).

Thieves have the least amount of hp and survivng through a dungeon makes it so that they take some money from other players in the group.

Task #7 (0.29 pts.) - Game Mechanics

Progress: 100%

Details:

- List each mechanic with supporting details to clearly portray the mechanic

Your Response:

players select roles at the start of the game. They will then be able to perform an action before drawing a card. The cards in the deck make random events happen, this can mean finding extra loot, gaining more resource cards, or taking damage. the player only has to reveal the card if they take damage. The players roll for the amount of damage taken and the amount is also determined by the role of the player. After this, the player's turn ends and someone else draws a card

Section #2: (1 pt.) Target Audience Analysis

Progress: 100%

Task #1 (1 pt.) - Identify and analyze the game's target audience

Progress: 100%

Details:

- Clearly identify the target audience
- Include analysis of demographics, interests, and gaming habits
- Justification of appeal to target audience

Your Response:

The audience is for tabletop gamers within the ages of 16 and 30. The reason being is that the mechanics feel a little complicated for younger children and the theme of the game is something that older gamers may enjoy more. The games setting being a dungeon and dieing might be themes that are not appropriate for younger audiences.

Progress: 100%

Details:

- Outline inclusivity strategies for a wide audience
- Discuss implementation of noted inclusivity strategies without compromising gameplay

Your Response:

The game is accessible and inclusive by having many pictures and different sized shaped symbols for those that may have issues differentiating colors and for people that may be partially blind. The game is based off of drawing cards and reading them aswell so it could always be read by someone with them. The resources in the game are physical tokens, so you can always track your health and money by what you can physicaly touch. The game is also fantasy based so the characters are diverse and can avoid stereotypes.

Progress: 100%

Your Response:

Leslie Girlfriend Said the game needs more roles, the replayability of the game depends on the amount of different scenarios that can occur.

I am going to create a few more classses so that players have more variety to choose from. Adding in a class that generates more resources as their health gets lower as well as a necromancer that gets stronger as other players die by using their corpses.

Josh Brother-in-law Likes the dungeon theme but feeels that the damage was not properly explained. Doesn't think that the game will be easy to pick up.

Make an informative player guide that tells players how to play the game and has game rules you can reference during the game.

Task #3 (0.67 pts.) - Feedback 3

Progress: 100%

Details:

- Note the person's name and relation to you
- Summarize feedback focusing on concept, mechanics, and style
- Reflect on how the feedback will be used to refine the design

Your Response:

Brendan Friend(Boardgame enjoyer)

Likes the theme of the game and the fantasy aspects. Brendan said he enjoys the health system because instant elimination would be frustrating. He likes the resources being physical tokens but thinks that nmaking too many resources could make resource tracking tedious.

I think this is a solid concern with the expanding amount of classes I want to add ot the game. I will assign one player to be the "bank" and provides the resources for all players at the end of their turn. This will make it easier to track since two people will have it in their mind.
